Two Hunters Lose Their Lives Through Carelessness in Handling Guns.

Thomas Smith, near Montpelier, and Winfield Sarver, of Miami County, Receive Deadly Charges of Shot in Their Bodies.

INDIANA.

One Dead and Another About to Die, as the Result of Accidental Shooting.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal, MONTPELIER, Dec. 30 .- While Thomas Smith, a young man, was hunting to-day, one mile south of this city, he climbed on a stump and in pulling up his gun it was accidentally discharged. The load of shot partly entered his side, passing into the pleural cavity and lungs, severing the small blood-vessels and producing internal hemorrhage. There is no possible chance for his recovery.

PERU, Dec. 30 .- Winfield Sarver, a wellknown young man, of Perrysburg, this county, while out hunting to-day, stum-bled and received the contents of both gunbarrels in his stomach and breast. He died a few hours later. Carelessness in leaving both barrels of his gun cocked caused the Putnam Farmers' Institute.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

GREENCASTLE, Dec. 30 .- A farmers' institute was organized in this city to-day and will continue to-morrow. J. W. Robe, the chairman, prepared an attractive programme for the occasion, which had the effect of gathering a large attendance of farmers. Mr. Robe delivered the welcoming address. The papers submitted to-day and the discussions following them were eminently practical and showed that the farmers of Putnam are not "calamity shrickers." The morning session was principally consumed in the consideration of stock-raising, which was presented by G. W. Hanna, and ably responded to by Hon. S. F. Lockridge, James Bridges and other well-known stockmen. "How to Grow and utilize the Corn Crop to the Best Advantage," was the principal theme discussed in the afternoon. M. Hil-lis and H. M. Randel won the thanks of gine while walking on the railroad track. the institute by their practical suggestions on that topic. Professor Plumb, of Purdue University, showed "Row Science is Helping the Farmer," and editor Kingsbury, of the Indiana Farmer, spoke of "Home Improvements." Mr. A. J. Lane presented the subject of "Dairying," Felix Alvin, that of "Toll Roads," and L. A. Stockwell "How to Grow Wheat at a Profit." Charged with Attempted Bribery.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SHOALS, Dec. 30 .- While the Board of County Commissioners was in session today Peter Rogle, ex-treasurer of this county, presented a claim for a large amount of money, said to be due him from the county. He had been found $7,000 short on his settlement with the county at the close of his term as treasurer, which sum his bondsmen made good for him. Ellis, one of the present board, was one of the bondsmen. Rogle promised to reimburse him, it is said if he would have his claim allowed. Accordingly, Ellis, it is charged, approached another commissioner and offered to pay him $50 if the latter would vote to allow Rogies's claim. Mr. Hart, the man approached, refused the bribe, and also refused to vote to allow Rogles's claim. Ellis MARTINSVILLE, Dec. 30 .- By an act of the Legislature of 1821 Morgan county was brought into existence. This act was approved by the Governor on the 31st day of December, 1821, and provided that James in the history of Illinois, and minute arrangements were completed to-day to pre-Berland of Monroe, Thomas Beasley of Lawrence, Philip Hart of Owen, John Milroy and John Martin of Washington counties, should meet at the house of John Gray on the first day of March, 1822, and locate the county-seat, which fell to the lot of this city, and which was named after the above John Martin, he being the oldest of those to set the stakes. The county will enter upon its seventy-first year to-morrow with a population of about twenty thousand.

Received Mysterious Checks.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENCASTLE, Dec. 30 .- The city authorities of Greencastle are in a quandary over financial transactions which they would like to have explained. City Treasurer Landes is in receipt of a bank check for $150, mailed from Sunman, Ind., and Mr. H. S. Renick, treasurer of the board of managers of Forest Hill Cemetery, has also received a check for a like amount from Kansas City, Mo. Both checks were drawn by a Cincinnati bank, and inquiry of the bank officiers has failed to elicit any information further than that the drafts are all right. The city authorities are completely in the dark and anxiously waiting for something to turn up.

> J. G. Gould, traveling engineer of the New York Central, one of the passengers on the ill-fated train, testified as to the scenes, and the aid rendered by himself to the injured after the accident. Train-dispatcher Osmun, at the Grand Central depot, testified as to his duties. He was on duty Christmas eve. He said that when he heard of the collision between the freight and the Croton local in the Sing Sing tunnel he gave orders for holding back the other trains that had been sent out. These were the Croton local and the limited St. Louis express. They were held at Dobbs Ferry. The Croton local had not been taken off. It was to follow the Niagara express, but he held it back and sent it out after the St. Louis express. He had heard nothing as to the whereabouts of the Niagara express. It should have been reported after it passed Spayten Dayvil and at Yonkers. The reason he did not hear of it from those points was that the wires were busy. Osmun was rigidly cross-examined but his testimony remained un-> train, testified that his train was blocked Conductor Wilkins, of the Niagara express, testified as to the stoppage of his train a half mile from Hastings. He thought he heard torpedoes explode in the direction of Hastings just before the St. Louis express collided with his train. The rear brakeman had been sent back with torpedoes. He was to place them on the track at regular intervals. He also sent brakeman Cramer back sixty feet, to a point where the road curved. He also had a red lantern. He saw Cramer go back with the lantern, but saw nothing more of Herrick. The accident happened twentyfive minutes after the stoppage of his train. When his train stopped he took every precaution to prevent an accident.

Conductor Fairchild, of the Croton local Cross-examined by Railroad Commissioner Rogers witness said he did not know that the Croton local had been taken off; he believed it was to follow his train. Had he known it had been taken off and the St. Louis express was to follow he would have been even more careful. He considered brakeman Herrick a reliable man. He [Herrick] had been employed on the train sixteen months. It was the duty of the rear brakeman to go back one thousand yards. It was not the practice to recall a brakeman who had been sent back. He was always left to be picked up by the following train. He saw Herrick go straight back when ordered.

Testimony was concluded this evening and the coroner's jury returned this verdict We, the undersigned members of the coroner's jury, do render the following verdict: That we hold brakeman Albert Herrick guilty of manslaughter in the second degree for the deaths of Thomas Policy and others in the accident on the New York Central, above Hastings, N. Y., on the night of Dec. 24, and also hold Augustus Osmun, train-dispatcher, as accessory thereto. We cen-sure the New York Central railroad for employing utterly incompetent men to discharge the duties in responsible positions. We also censure station agent Charles Delancy, of Hastings, N. ... for not finding out the cause of brakeman Herrick's appearance at the station. We also recommend that the New York Central railroad adopt some system so that the lives of passengers may be more secure. ANOTHER CRAZY SPELL

Indians Renew the Ghost Dance and Say They Won't Quit Until the Messiah Comes. GUTHRIE, O. T., Dec. 30 .- A courier from the Cheyenne and Arapahoe reservation states that the Messiah craze has broken out anew among the Indians there. Left Hand, head chief of the Arapahoes, and Old Crow and Whirlwind, chiefs of the Cheyennes, have gathered a thousand Indians about them among the interior hills. and for many days and nights have kept the dance up continually, declaring that they will not stop until the Savior arrives.

While it is quiet enough near the reservation buildings, dancing has been going on among the hills for several days, and the craze is apparently spreading. At first the gathering was small, but Indi ans have been streaming into the camp until now there are from 1,000 to 1,200 present. They declare that the Messiah who is to expel the whites, bring back the bufand restore their huntingfalo and restore their huntinggrounds to the Indians, is soon coming. Runners have come in from Walker's Lake, Nev., inciting the Indians to activity and predicting the early appearance of the Messiah. The ghost-dance goes on day and night, the Indians being divided into relays, one party relieving another as the fatigue overcomes them. All are provided with ghost-shirts, and seem terribly in earnest. Scouts report that wild bly in earnest. Scouts report that wild whoops and yells can be heard at all hours of the day and night from the bills where the tribes have gathered. As yet the excitement has not reached the Comanches, but it is feared that they, too, may become involved. This is regarded as a serious danger, as the Comanches have an ample supply of ponies, in which the Cheyennes and Arapahoes are deficient. All are well armed with Winchesters and revolvers. The officers of most experience in Indian warfare are not inclined to believe that any serious outbreak will occur at present, as the Indians have a horror of winter campaigns, but the excitement may cause them to depart from their usual practice of making war only when there is plenty of grass for their ponies. Plaint of Mixed Bloods and Squaw Men. PIERRE, S. D., Dec. 30.-The mixed-blood Indians and the squaw men are so ablar letters to the numerous Indian nations of the United States. They claim that there will be a prompt response in all that is asked of the mixed bloods.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS.

Topics Discussed by the Historical Association-The Folk-Lore Society.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 .- The meeting of the American Historical Association was continued this morning at the National Museum. A large audience listened to six papers on American history, two of which were read by women. Miss Mary Parker Follett, of the Harvard Annex, read a paper on Henry Clay. Dr. Steiner, of Williams College, Massachusetts, followed with a paper on Gov. William Leete and the absorption of the New Haven colony by Connecticut. The "Earliest Texas" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. L. C. Harby, of New York city. A lasting impression on Texas has been left, she said, by the influence of Spain, for the State still used the same measures for land and the identical terms for surveying that the priests used when they first taught the Indians. Gen. James Grant Wilson's paper was on "Lord Lovelace." Papers were read by J. G. Bourinot, of Ottawa, Canada, on "Memorials of the French Regime in Cape Breton," and by W. E. Dubois, of Harvard, on "Enforcement of the Slave-trade Laws."

The evening session was devoted to the reading of papers on kindred subjects of American history. Mr. Spofford, librarian of Congress, presented a graphic historical sketch of lotteries in American history. Lotteries were common in America as early as 1719, and during all the last century they had been a favorite means of raising money for public improvements, colleges, academies, town buildings, and very largely for churches. Some amusing inci-dents were quoted. The lotteries for Harvard, Yale and Princeton College buildings appeared to have been the most successful, while one for Plymouth harbor, in Massachusetts, with drawings amount-ing to $880,000, produced only $9.800 for the public object aimed at. The fact that as late as 1838 there were two hundred lottery shops doing business in Philadelphia alone led to the formation of an anti-lottery association and the final extinction of the business by legislative action. New England was once full of the lottery system, but it was put an end to about half a century ago. Louisiana was referred to as the only State now permitting lotteries, and this exists for a limited term. The conclusion of the speaker was that the experience of the country had gradually but surely crystallized into the general public conviction that lotteries are to be regarded, in direct proportion to their extension, as among the most dangerous and prolific sources of human misery.

DAILY, SUNDAY AND WEEKLY.

The Journal is first of all a newspaper. Its primary object is to pub lish the news, and to secure this it spares no pains or expense. Besides the service of two great news agencies, which cover foreign countries as well as the entire United States, it has a corps of Special Correspondents, who give attention to those events and occurrences that are likely to be of particular interest to the Indiana public. Its Washington bureau was established for the purpose of looking after matters in which the State and its people are concerned, and is under the management of an Indiana man well acquainted with the local business and political issues. It has a correspondent in every town of importance in the State, and is constantly increasing its facilities for obtaining information from every quarter. Its staff of city reporters is large, and its local departments are unexcelled. As a newspaper it is far better equipped than any other in the State, and welcomes comparison with its contemporaries in any and all of its departments. With all it endeavors to be accurate and trustworthy, printing the news, whatever it may be, without personal or parti-

But while the Journal is non-partisan as to news, it is a Republican paper, and sets forth Republican principles. It is important that the people shall read the truth about these principles, and it was with the opject of putting everybody in the way of doing so that the price of the

---- Was reduced to---

15 CENTS A WEEK.

No other method of securing a Republican victory at the polls is so certain as the circulation of Republican papers among voters. Since the reduction in price thousands of subscriptions have poured in from all parts of the State, showing that a need was supplied. In order to have the proper influence and effect upon voters seeking for trustworthy information the Journal should go into their hands at once, and not next spring or summer. Clubs are being formed and agencies established wherever daily mails reach and as rapidly as traveling agents can visit the places, but Republicans in each and every locality cannot do their party greater service than to interest themselves in circulating the Journal.

THE SUNDAY JOURNAL

Reduced rates to clubs.

The same reasons that call for the immediate extension of the daily circulation apply to the weekly. This is carefully edited, with a special view to the wants of Indiana readers, both in its general and political news. Its subscription price, $1, with reduction to clubs, places it within the reach of all, and no campaign contribution can be so effective as when spent in furnishing this paper to readers who need Republican doctrine.
